SMELL : EMOTION AND MEMORY

BIG QUESTION: Can we remember smells?

Your teacher will read you a passage from a children's book where Simone and her mother return home from a trip to the park. As soon as they open the front door, they smell the delicious aroma of Dad's bread baking in the kitchen. Simone's Mum smiles and says that the smell reminds her of her Grandma's house when she was a little girl. The smell brings back memories of her Grandmother's cottage and the smells and sounds of baking day. "Really Mum? You remember all that just from the smell?", gasps Simone. Her Mum just continues to smile, happy and content in a blanket of wonderful memories.

Can you name any smells that remind you of a certain time, place or person?

Discuss with the group any smells you can think of that make you feel happy like Simone's Mum, or take you back to another type of mood or feeling.

Look at the images, can you describe them?

Now smell the food hidden in the shoe box.

Which image best represents the smell?
